The papers in this volume represent the best historical writing produced by Santa Clara University students in the 1985/86 academic year. Although we are proud to present them as diverse representations of the quality to be found in our department, we should note that they were by no means the only good papers submitted for publication in this issue. Considerations of space, however, limit the number of essays we can offer in this forum. Nevertheless, we would like to thank all who submitted their work to our scrutiny, because it is the general level of competitiveness which keeps this journal as good as it is. We would also like to thank Fr. Gerald McKeivitt, S.J., and the History Department for their support in bringing this collection together.
